From the date of issue of the certificate, the company is responsible under the Act for the timely development, implementation and management of the IHS project in accordance with the approval granted by the Economic Development Board.
- The Company issued with an IHS Certificate has to implement the project as approved by the Economic Development Board and cannot change the use to which each major part of the development area has been approved, without the prior approval of the Economic Development Board.
- The Economic Development Board reserves the right to revoke an IHS certificate where the IHS Company:
 - has not started the project as per the implementation schedule for which the certificate was granted;
 - is acting or has acted in breach of any terms and conditions of the IHS certificate;
 - has provided false and misleading information and has acted in contravention to the Economic Development Board Act and the regulations made thereunder;
